How to Get What You Want in a Relationship (Without Being Demanding)

Ah, relationships. They're a beautiful, messy, wonderful dance, aren't they? We all enter them with hopes, dreams, and a desire to be loved, understood, and cherished. But sometimes, amidst the day-to-day of building a life together, we find ourselves yearning for something more, something different. We want our needs met, our desires acknowledged, and our vision for the partnership realized. The question then becomes: how do we navigate this delicate balance of getting what we want in a relationship without coming across as entitled, demanding, or even manipulative? It's a common concern. Many of us were raised with the idea that wanting things can be selfish, or that in a relationship, you should just be grateful for what you have. While gratitude is undoubtedly crucial, it doesn't mean we should silence our own desires. In fact, healthy relationships are built on a foundation of open communication and mutual fulfillment. So, if you're wondering how to articulate your needs, set healthy boundaries, and truly thrive in your partnership, you've come to the right place. This isn't about getting your way all the time; it's about fostering a connection where both partners feel heard, valued, and ultimately, happier.

Understanding What "Getting What You Want" Really Means

Before we dive into the "how," let's clarify what "getting what you want" actually entails in a relationship context. It's not about wielding power or forcing your partner to bend to your will. Instead, it's about:

1. Having your core needs met: This includes emotional needs like feeling loved, respected, supported, and secure, as well as practical needs that contribute to your well-being.
2. Expressing your desires: These could be big dreams, like traveling the world together, or smaller wishes, like having more quality time or a specific type of date night.
3. Feeling understood and validated: When your partner truly grasps your perspective, even if they don't always agree, it fosters a deep sense of connection.
4. Building a shared vision: Successfully navigating differences and aligning on important life choices creates a strong, unified partnership.
5. Personal growth within the relationship: Sometimes, what we want is to be challenged, inspired, or to grow as individuals, and a healthy relationship can facilitate this.

It's crucial to differentiate this from a one-sided pursuit. True relationship fulfillment is a two-way street. Your partner also has desires and needs, and a healthy dynamic allows both of you to pursue them.

The Foundation: Self-Awareness and Clarity

You can't get what you want if you don't know what that is! This might sound obvious, but so many of us operate on autopilot, or we project what we think we should want onto our relationships.

Pinpointing Your Core Needs

Take some time for introspection. What are your non-negotiables? What makes you feel loved and secure? Think about the five love languages – words of affirmation, acts of service, receiving gifts, quality time, and physical touch. Do you feel most loved when your partner expresses appreciation? Or is it more about them helping you with chores? Understanding your primary love language can be a game-changer. Beyond love languages, consider your fundamental emotional needs. Do you need reassurance? Do you crave intellectual stimulation? Do you need space and independence? Be honest with yourself. Journaling can be incredibly helpful here. Write down what makes you feel happy, what makes you feel drained, and what you genuinely miss when it's not present in your interactions.

Identifying Your Desires and Dreams

These are the things that add sparkle and joy to your life and your relationship. They might be about:

1. Shared experiences: Adventurous trips, learning a new skill together, attending concerts, or even just weekly movie nights.
2. Personal goals: Supporting your partner's career ambitions, or them supporting yours.
3. Lifestyle choices: How you spend your weekends, your financial goals, or your approach to health and fitness.
4. Intimacy and connection: Deeper conversations, more affection, or shared rituals.

Don't censor yourself at this stage. Write down everything that comes to mind, no matter how small or seemingly insignificant. These are the building blocks of a rich and fulfilling partnership.

The Art of Communication: Expressing Your Wants Effectively

Once you've gained clarity, the next crucial step is to communicate your needs and desires to your partner. This is where many relationships falter, not because of a lack of love, but because of ineffective communication.

Choosing the Right Time and Place

Timing is everything. Bringing up a sensitive topic when your partner is stressed, exhausted, or distracted is a recipe for disaster. Look for a calm, relaxed moment when you both have the mental and emotional bandwidth to engage. A quiet evening at home, a leisurely walk, or even during a dedicated "check-in" conversation can be ideal. Avoid having these discussions when you're in the heat of an argument or when one of you is about to leave for work.

Using "I" Statements

This is perhaps the most fundamental principle of assertive communication. Instead of saying, "You never listen to me," which sounds accusatory, try, "I feel unheard when we discuss X, and I need to feel like my perspective is being considered." "I" statements focus on your feelings and experiences, rather than blaming your partner. They open the door for dialogue instead of triggering defensiveness. Other examples include:

1. "I would love it if we could plan a weekend getaway soon. I've been feeling a bit stressed lately and need some time to relax and reconnect with you."
2. "I feel a little lonely when you're working late so often. Could we try to schedule at least one evening a week where we have dinner together?"
3. "I really appreciate your help with X, and I was hoping we could also tackle Y together this week. It would make me feel more supported."

The key is to express your needs and feelings authentically without making your partner feel attacked or inadequate.

Being Specific and Actionable

Vague requests are hard to fulfill. Instead of saying, "I want more romance," consider saying, "I would love it if we could go on a date night once a month, where we dress up and go to a nice restaurant." Or, "I feel most romantic when we cuddle on the couch and talk after dinner." The more specific you are, the easier it is for your partner to understand what you're asking for and how they can meet that need. Think about concrete actions that would make a difference in your relationship.

Active Listening: It's Not Just About Talking

Getting what you want in a relationship is also about ensuring your partner feels heard and understood. This means practicing active listening. When your partner is speaking, put away distractions, make eye contact, and nod to show you're engaged. More importantly, try to understand their perspective, even if it differs from yours. Paraphrase what they've said to ensure you've understood correctly: "So, if I'm hearing you right, you feel X when Y happens?" This shows empathy and a genuine desire to connect.

Navigating Differences and Finding Compromise

Not every desire can or will be met perfectly. Relationships involve two individuals with their own needs, wants, and perspectives. The art of compromise is essential.

Understanding Your Partner's Needs and Desires

Just as you've taken the time to understand yourself, make a conscious effort to understand your partner's inner world. What are their dreams? What makes them feel loved and valued? When you prioritize their needs and desires, it fosters a sense of reciprocity that is crucial for a healthy partnership. Ask open-ended questions. "What's something you've been wanting to do lately?" or "How are you feeling about X?" Show genuine interest and a willingness to support their aspirations.

The Power of "We" vs. "Me"

In a relationship, the goal is to find solutions that work for both of you. This involves shifting your mindset from "what do I want?" to "what do we need to make this work?" Compromise doesn't mean sacrificing your core values or needs. It means finding a middle ground, a solution that honors both individuals. For example, if one of you wants to spend a quiet evening at home and the other wants to go out with friends, a compromise could be to spend a few hours out and then come home for some quiet time together.

Knowing When to Stand Firm and When to Bend

There are certain non-negotiables, your core needs and values, that you shouldn't compromise on. If something fundamentally goes against your ethical compass or causes you significant emotional distress, it's okay to hold your ground. However, for less critical desires, a willingness to bend and adapt is a sign of maturity and commitment to the relationship. It's about recognizing that sometimes, the needs of the partnership outweigh individual preferences.

Building Trust and Security

When you feel safe and secure in a relationship, you're more likely to be vulnerable and express your desires. Trust is the bedrock upon which healthy communication and fulfillment are built.

Consistency and Reliability

If you say you're going to do something, do it. If you promise to be there, be there. Consistency in your actions builds trust. When your partner knows they can rely on you, they are more likely to feel secure and open to your requests. Similarly, when you consistently show up for your partner, you build that trust.

Honesty and Transparency

Be open about your thoughts, feelings, and intentions. Avoid keeping secrets or being deceptive. Transparency fosters a sense of honesty that is essential for a strong connection. If you're struggling with something, share it. If you're excited about something, share it. This open flow of information creates a safe space for vulnerability.

Respecting Boundaries

Understanding and respecting each other's boundaries is paramount. Boundaries are the invisible lines that protect our emotional, physical, and mental well-being. When you clearly communicate your boundaries and your partner respects them (and vice versa), it creates a sense of safety and mutual respect. For instance, if you need a certain amount of personal space, your partner should respect that. If your partner expresses a need for alone time, honor it.

When Things Get Tough: Seeking Support and Re-evaluation

No relationship is perfect, and there will be times when you feel your needs aren't being met, or when conflicts arise.

Addressing Unmet Needs and Persistent Issues

If you've tried communicating your needs and desires, and they continue to be unmet, it's time to re-evaluate the situation. This doesn't necessarily mean the relationship is doomed, but it might indicate deeper issues that need to be addressed. Are your expectations realistic? Is your partner truly capable of meeting these needs, or are they facing their own challenges? This might involve a deeper conversation about individual limitations or the overall health of the relationship dynamics.

The Role of Professional Help

Don't hesitate to seek couples counseling or therapy. A trained professional can provide a neutral space for you and your partner to explore your communication patterns, understand each other's perspectives, and develop healthier ways of navigating conflict and meeting each other's needs. Sometimes, an external facilitator is exactly what you need to break through ingrained patterns.

Knowing When to Re-evaluate the Relationship

Ultimately, you have a right to be in a relationship that nourishes and fulfills you. If, after honest effort and communication, your core needs are consistently unmet, and the relationship is causing more pain than joy, it might be time to re-evaluate if it's the right fit for you. This is a difficult but sometimes necessary step in prioritizing your own well-being.

Conclusion: A Journey of Growth and Connection

Getting what you want in a relationship isn't about manipulation or getting your own way. It's about cultivating a partnership built on open communication, mutual understanding, and a shared commitment to each other's happiness.

and growth. By understanding yourself, communicating effectively, practicing empathy, and respecting boundaries, you can create a dynamic where both partners feel seen, heard, and loved. Remember, this is an ongoing process. Relationships evolve, and so do our needs and desires. The ability to adapt, communicate, and compromise will be your greatest assets in building a relationship that truly thrives, where you both can get what you want, and in doing so, create something even more beautiful together. The journey of understanding and meeting each other's needs is, in itself, a profound and rewarding aspect of love.

Getting what you want in a relationship is not about manipulation, control, or demanding compliance—it's about understanding, communication, and alignment. At its core, a healthy relationship thrives when both partners actively seek to create mutual satisfaction, where needs and desires are clearly expressed, heard, and respected. This goes beyond surface-level compromise; it requires intentionality, emotional awareness, and the courage to engage authentically. Many people approach relationships with a mindset of acquisition—wanting to “get” everything they desire, often overlooking the importance of reciprocity and shared values. Yet true fulfillment comes not from taking, but from building a partnership where both individuals feel seen, valued, and supported. The key lies in shifting focus from what you want to how you can create a foundation of trust, empathy, and open dialogue that naturally leads to mutual satisfaction.

Understanding Your Needs and Values

Before seeking anything in a relationship, it's essential to deeply understand your own needs, boundaries, and core values. This self-awareness acts as a compass, guiding your choices and helping you communicate with clarity and confidence. When you know what truly matters to you—whether it's honesty, emotional intimacy, independence, or shared goals—you're better equipped to express these needs without fear or inconsistency. Without this grounding, efforts to “get” what you want may come across as vague or demanding, risking misunderstanding and disconnection. Take time to reflect: What do I truly want in a relationship? Is it security, adventure, deep conversation, or mutual support? Identifying these desires helps set realistic expectations and prevents settling for less than you deserve. This internal work fosters authenticity, making it easier to connect with someone who shares your values and vision.

Communication as the Bridge to Mutual Understanding

Once you understand your own needs, the next vital step is open, honest, and respectful communication. Expressing your desires thoughtfully—without blame or pressure—creates space for your partner to engage with empathy rather than defensiveness. Effective communication isn't just about speaking; it's about listening deeply, validating feelings, and responding with care. When both partners share their hopes and concerns openly, misunderstandings shrink, and trust deepens. A relationship built on transparent dialogue allows for continuous adjustment. Needs evolve over time, and regular check-ins—gentle yet meaningful conversations about satisfaction, expectations, and growth—keep the connection dynamic and responsive. This ongoing exchange ensures neither partner feels invisible or overlooked, fostering a sense of partnership rather than transaction.

Building Emotional Safety and Reciprocity

For a relationship to thrive, both individuals must feel safe to be themselves—warts and all. Emotional safety is cultivated through consistency, respect, and the absence of fear of judgment or rejection. When both people feel secure, they are more willing to express vulnerability, share desires, and collaborate on meeting each other's needs. Reciprocity is equally important; relationships flourish when effort and care are shared, not imposed. Getting what you want shouldn't mean one person gives while the other takes. Instead, it's about mutual investment—supporting each other's growth, celebrating successes, and navigating challenges together. This balance of giving and receiving builds resilience, ensuring the relationship endures beyond initial infatuation and into lasting fulfillment.

Practical Applications and Long-Term Benefits

Applying these principles in daily life transforms abstract ideals into real connection. Start by initiating honest conversations about hopes and boundaries early on. Practice active listening, validating your partner's feelings even when views differ. Be willing to adapt—relationships require flexibility as people grow. Celebrate small wins together, whether it's planning meaningful time or supporting each other's personal goals. Over time, these habits cultivate respect, intimacy, and lasting satisfaction. Partners learn to anticipate each other's needs, resolve conflicts constructively, and grow side by side. The future of relationships lies not in securing individual desires at the expense of the other, but in co-creating a shared vision of happiness—one rooted in trust, understanding, and mutual care. As societies and expectations evolve, the demand for authentic connection only deepens. The ability to communicate clearly, honor boundaries, and nurture emotional safety is no longer optional—it's essential for building relationships that endure, enrich, and truly satisfy. By focusing on alignment rather than acquisition, individuals pave the way for deeper bonds that enrich both lives and stand the test of time.

Unlocking Desired Connections: A Comprehensive Guide to Getting What You Want in a Relationship

The quest for a fulfilling romantic partnership is as old as time itself. We all enter relationships with hopes, dreams, and, yes, desires. But navigating the complex landscape of human connection to achieve those aspirations can feel like deciphering an ancient riddle. This article will delve deep into the art and science of getting what you want in a relationship, moving beyond superficial tactics to explore the foundational principles that foster mutual satisfaction and enduring happiness. We'll uncover the strategies that empower you to communicate your needs effectively, foster genuine intimacy, and build a bond where both partners feel seen, heard, and valued.

The phrase "getting what you want in a relationship" can sometimes conjure images of manipulation or selfish pursuit. However, a truly healthy and sustainable approach focuses on mutual understanding, effective communication, and shared growth. It's about aligning your desires with those of your partner to create a symbiotic partnership, not a transactional exchange. This means understanding that what you want often needs to be integrated with what your partner wants, leading to a richer, more robust connection for both.

Understanding the Nuance: What "Wanting" Really Means in Love

Before we dive into the 'how-to,' it's crucial to define what "getting what you want" truly entails in the context of a loving relationship. It's rarely about a singular, self-serving demand. Instead, it's about:

1. Meeting Core Emotional Needs: This includes feeling loved, appreciated, respected, understood, and secure.
2. Shared Life Goals: Envisioning a future that aligns with your partner's aspirations, whether it's about family, career, travel, or personal development.
3. Emotional and Intellectual Connection: Engaging in meaningful conversations, sharing vulnerabilities, and feeling mentally stimulated by your partner.
4. Physical Intimacy and Affection: Experiencing a healthy and satisfying sexual connection, along with everyday gestures of affection.
5. Support and Encouragement: Having a partner who champions your dreams and is there for you during challenges.
6. Autonomy and Space: Maintaining your individuality and having personal time and interests.

It's about cultivating a partnership where these needs are not just acknowledged but actively nurtured. When we focus on these deeper aspects, the path to "getting what you want" becomes a journey of shared creation, not individual conquest.

The Foundation of Fulfillment: Self-Awareness and Clarity

The most critical step in achieving your relationship desires lies within yourself. Without a clear understanding of what you truly want, you'll struggle to articulate it to others, let alone achieve it. This introspective phase is paramount for building authentic connections.

Pinpointing Your Non-Negotiables and Desires

Before you can effectively communicate your needs, you must first identify them. Grab a journal, find a quiet space, and ask yourself:

1. What qualities are essential in a partner for me to feel happy and fulfilled?
2. What are my core emotional needs in a relationship (e.g., security, affection, intellectual stimulation)?
3. What are my deal-breakers?
4. What do I envision for my future, and how does a partner fit into that vision?
5. What are my love languages? Understanding how you and your partner express and receive love is a cornerstone of relationship success.

This process isn't about listing demands but about understanding your personal blueprint for a healthy and happy partnership. It's about recognizing your own value and what contributes to your well-being.

Differentiating Needs from Wants

In the realm of relationship building, it's vital to distinguish between genuine needs and mere wants. Needs are fundamental to your emotional well-being and the health of the relationship, while wants are more about preferences or desires that, while nice, aren't deal-breakers. For instance, needing to feel respected is a core requirement. Wanting your partner to always do the dishes might be a preference. Understanding this distinction helps prioritize your communication and ensures you focus on what truly matters.

The Art of Communication: Speaking Your Truth, Hearing Theirs

Once you've clarified your own desires, the next crucial step is effective communication. This involves not only expressing yourself clearly but also actively listening and understanding your partner's perspective. Many relationship breakdowns stem from a lack of effective communication, leading to misunderstandings and unmet expectations.

Crafting Clear and Respectful Requests

Avoid vague pronouncements or passive-aggressive hints. Instead, learn to frame your desires as clear, actionable requests:

1. Be Specific: Instead of "I want more attention," try "I would love it if we could have a dedicated hour each evening to just talk without distractions."
2. Use "I" Statements: Focus on your feelings and experiences. "I feel [emotion] when [situation] because [reason]. I would appreciate it if [desired action]." For example, "I feel a little lonely when you work late without letting me know, because I miss our connection. I would appreciate it if you could text me when you know you'll be home late."
3. Focus on Solutions, Not Blame: Frame your requests as collaborative problem-solving. "How can we make sure we have enough quality time together?" rather than "You never make time for me."
4. Timing is Key: Choose a calm, relaxed moment to discuss important issues, not when either of you is stressed or tired.

The Power of Active Listening and Empathy

Communication is a two-way street. To truly get what you want, you must also be willing to understand your partner's needs and desires. This requires genuine active listening:

1. Pay Full Attention: Put away distractions, make eye contact, and nod to show you're engaged.
2. Seek to Understand: Ask clarifying questions like "Can you tell me more about that?" or "So, if I understand correctly, you're feeling X?"
3. Validate Their Feelings: Even if you don't agree, acknowledge their emotions. "I can see why you would feel that way."
4. Practice Empathy: Try to put yourself in their shoes and understand their perspective. This builds trust and a sense of shared experience.

When both partners feel truly heard and understood, it creates a fertile ground for compromise and mutual fulfillment. This reciprocal exchange is the bedrock of a strong, adaptable relationship.

Building Trust and Intimacy: The Bedrock of Lasting Desire

Beyond communication, the depth of your connection, built on trust and intimacy, is what allows for the sustained fulfillment of your desires. These are not static achievements but ongoing processes that require consistent effort and vulnerability.

Cultivating Vulnerability and Authenticity

True intimacy blossoms when both partners feel safe enough to be their authentic selves, including their flaws and fears. This means being willing to:

1. Share Your Inner World: Open up about your thoughts, feelings, hopes, and insecurities.
2. Be Honest: Even when it's difficult, truthfulness fosters trust.
3. Allow Yourself to Be Seen: Resist the urge to present a perfect facade. Your partner needs to know the real you.

When you allow yourself to be vulnerable, you invite your partner to do the same, deepening the emotional bond and creating a space where desires can be shared without judgment.

The Role of Trust and Security

Trust is the invisible glue that holds a relationship together. It's built through consistent actions and a reliable presence:

1. Keep Your Promises: Follow through on commitments, big or small.
2. Be Reliable: Be there for your partner when they need you.
3. Respect Boundaries: Understand and honor your partner's personal limits.
4. Be Transparent: Openness about your activities and intentions builds confidence.

When trust and security are firmly established, partners feel more comfortable expressing their desires, knowing they will be met with consideration and respect, not suspicion or defensiveness. This fosters a safe harbor for emotional growth and shared aspirations.

Navigating Compromise and Shared Growth

No relationship is a perfect alignment of desires. The ability to navigate differences and grow together is what transforms a good relationship into a great one. This involves a willingness to adapt and evolve.

Finding the Sweet Spot: Compromise and Negotiation

Getting what you want doesn't always mean getting exactly what you envisioned. It often involves finding a middle ground:

1. Identify Shared Goals: Focus on what you both want to achieve as a couple.
2. Be Willing to Give and Take: Relationships are about reciprocity. Understand that sometimes you'll need to compromise on your wants to meet your partner's needs.
3. Brainstorm Solutions Together: Approach disagreements as opportunities to find creative solutions that work for both of you.
4. Know When to Stand Firm: While compromise is important, don't compromise on your core needs or values.

Effective negotiation is not about winning or losing, but about finding outcomes that strengthen the partnership and foster a sense of equity.

Embracing Change and Evolving Desires

People change, and so do their desires. A healthy relationship is one that can adapt and grow with its partners. Regularly check in with yourself and your partner about your evolving needs and dreams. This might involve:

1. Regular Relationship Check-ins: Set aside time to discuss how you're both feeling about the relationship and if any needs have changed.
2. Supporting Individual Growth: Encourage your partner's personal pursuits, even if they differ from your own.
3. Being Open to New Experiences Together: Trying new things can reignite passion and create shared memories.

By embracing change and fostering a culture of continuous learning and adaptation, you ensure that your relationship remains dynamic and fulfilling over the long haul, allowing both partners to consistently get what they want and need.

Conclusion: The Ongoing Journey of Mutual Fulfillment

Getting what you want in a relationship is not a destination but an ongoing journey. It requires self-awareness, clear and empathetic communication, the cultivation of trust and intimacy, and a commitment to compromise and growth. By focusing on building a strong, supportive, and understanding partnership, you create a space where both individuals can thrive, their desires are met, and the relationship flourishes. Remember, the most fulfilling relationships are not those where one person dictates terms, but where two individuals work together to create a shared reality that brings joy, satisfaction, and enduring love to both.

Questions & Answers About how to get what you want in a relationship

No	Question	Answer
1	My partner and I keep having the same arguments. How can we get what we want without fighting all the time?	Focus on 'I' statements to express your feelings and needs, rather than blame. Actively listen to your partner's perspective, validate their emotions, and brainstorm solutions together. Compromise is key – finding a middle ground where both partners feel heard and respected is more sustainable than winning an argument.
2	I feel like my needs are always being overlooked. How can I make sure my partner hears and addresses them?	Communicate your needs clearly and specifically, ideally during a calm moment. Instead of hinting, state what you want and why it's important to you. After expressing yourself, ask your partner how they feel about it and what they can do. Be patient, as change takes time and consistent communication.
3	We want different things for our future (e.g., career paths, where to live). How do we navigate this and still get what we want individually?	Open and honest conversations about your individual aspirations are crucial. Explore potential compromises and look for ways to support each other's goals, even if they aren't identical. Sometimes, 'getting what you want' means finding a shared vision that incorporates individual dreams.
4	My partner is hesitant to try new things I suggest in the relationship. How can I encourage them to be more open to getting what I want?	Start small and introduce new ideas gradually. Explain the benefits you see for both of you. Be willing to compromise on the 'how' and 'when'. Reassure them that their comfort is important and that you value their participation, not just compliance.
5	I feel like I'm always the one compromising. How can I get my needs met without feeling like I'm sacrificing everything?	Establish boundaries and communicate them assertively. Regularly check in with yourself about what's truly important. It's okay to say 'no' sometimes, and to express that you need to see more effort towards meeting your needs. Seek a balance where both partners contribute and receive.
6	How can I get my partner to understand my emotional needs better and respond accordingly?	Educate your partner about your emotional landscape. Explain what specific actions or words make you feel understood, supported, or loved. Be patient with their learning curve, and acknowledge and appreciate when they make an effort to meet those needs.

7	We have different communication styles. How can we bridge this gap to get what we both need from our conversations?	Identify your and your partner's preferred communication styles. Agree on active listening techniques, such as paraphrasing and asking clarifying questions. Schedule dedicated time for important conversations to minimize distractions and ensure both feel heard.
8	I want more quality time with my partner, but they seem busier or less interested. How can I get this desire met?	Suggest specific, engaging activities you'd enjoy together, rather than just asking for 'more time.' Be open to their suggestions as well. Make your time together intentional and present, minimizing distractions like phones. Express how important this time is to your well-being.
9	How do I get my partner to be more involved in household chores or responsibilities without feeling like I'm nagging?	Have a calm discussion about the division of labor. Create a clear, shared list of responsibilities and agree on expectations. Focus on teamwork and shared goals. Acknowledge and appreciate their contributions, making it a collaborative effort rather than a chore list.
10	What if what I want in a relationship fundamentally conflicts with what my partner wants? How do we move forward?	This is a significant challenge. First, ensure you both fully understand each other's desires and their underlying reasons. Explore if there's any middle ground or if your core values are truly incompatible. In some cases, it may mean acknowledging that the relationship isn't a good fit for both individuals' long-term happiness.
